

A Manor House Tale (Lagerlof in English)

Written in 1899, Selma Lagerlofs novella A Manor House Tale is at one and the same time a complex psychological novel and a folk tale, a love story and a Gothic melodrama. Gunnar and Ingrid, one driven to madness by the horrific death of his goats in a blizzard, the other falling into a death-like trance as a result of the absence of familial warmth, rescue each other from their psychological underworlds and return to an everyday world that is now enhanced by the victory of goodness and love. Translated from Swedish by Peter Graves
