Excerpt: ... () first fight of this God incarnate, engaged the Affections of those who had the Happiness to behold him? One might see in his Eyes (says the same Writer in another Place) a certain heavenly Brightness, and the divine Majesty gave a ravishing c Glory to his Countenance.-f-Then he inquires, by way of consequence, How otherwise could he have attracted the Apostles with so much ease to follow him? How could he have confounded those that came to apprehend him in the Garden of Olives, if he had not had something extraordinary in his Terfon? % St. Chryostome relates, that the Eyes of the People were nailed as it were to the Person of our Redeemer in the most earnest manner, and that they were never weary in seeing and admiring him. He was a most graceful Person, and it was impossible to behold him without Love and Wonder.
