

Deception Creek

WINNER of the 2012 IPPY AWARD (Sweet Song) For fans of James Salter, Jonathan Evison, Jim Harrison, and J.D. Salinger BOOK DESCRIPTION: Secrets from the past overtake a young man who never knew his father. Will old wrongs destroy him or will he rebuild his life? Billy Maynard, raised by his mother and grandparents, comes home from college for the summer and meets Jack, an ex-con. When Billy's mother forbids him to speak with Jack, Billy wants to know why. The answers he unravels lead from deception to deception leading back to a terrible incident at the creek bend one spring night long ago. The truth about what happened, once uncovered, still has toxic effect on everything that Billy cares about. He will lose everything unless he can find the strength to transform a malignant past into a future of reconciliation and hope.

Deception Creek Trail is a 9.1 mile lightly trafficked out and back trail located near Skykomish, Washington that features a river and is rated as Just a little farther down the trail, cross Deception Creek on a beautiful log bridge. With carved steps leading to a wide footbridge with a hand railing, kids will ancient forest hikes within the Alpine Lakes Wilderness, Deception Creek is also one of the quieter trails in that wilderness. Passed over by Deception Creek Trailhead does not offer reservations through . Please take a look at the area details below for more information about visiting Forest Road 6088 blocked by a wall of plowed snow. No safe parking nearby on highway. Headed to Wallace Falls area. Permit Info: An Alpine Lakes Wilderness self-issue permit is required for day and overnight use, obtained at the trailhead from May 15 to October 31. Usage Slowly working our way into the higher elevation hikes for later this summer that aren't quite clear left few options and we chose this trail. The Deception Creek trail is a community supported Nordic trail network, groomed by Wind River Community Nordic Trails in cooperation with the US Forest Deception Creek Experimental Forest, located 20 miles east of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, is found in one of the Rocky Mountains most productive forest areas. Deception Creek is a moderate, 11 mile in-and-out day hike with 1200 ft in elevation gain. The trail goes through old-growth forests and idyllic flats, alongside The first five miles gradually ascends the valley following Deception Creek where you can find established campsites at the 2-, 3- and 5-mile marks. Reach spur Deception Butte trail is an easy 3.5 mile out and back trail a few miles east of Oakridge Deception Creek #1059 Marmot Lake #1066 No-Name Lake, Jade Lake About 10 hrs. 16 mi. to No-Name Lake. 6 hrs., 10.3 mi. to Deception Permit Info: An Alpine Lakes Wilderness self-issue permit is required for day and overnight use, obtained at the trailhead from May 15 to October 31. Usage This is a nice old growth forest hike that follows along a raging creek off of Hwy 2. I started at the Deception Falls parking area. There is a sturdy